

We sympathise with the many citizens who have become disillusioned with our political system. Unfortunately, Canadians are responding to this situation either by voting for the “least worst” party or by not voting at all. But the voting for the “least worst” strategy will never lead to positive change. And not voting is seen by the big mainstream parties as silent acceptance of the status quo.

So by not voting we are encouraging them to continue along in the same destructive way.

There has to be a

Why vote green?

Green Party policies are built on 21st century ideas in response to 21st century problems.

Politics is no longer about 'left' versus 'right'; it's about 'green' versus 'grey'. It's about finding real solutions to problems instead of simply addressing symptoms. It's about planning for long-term as well as for short-term gain. It's about developing strong, diverse communities that are founded upon sustainable practices. It's about taking that first step.

Our time has come.

The Green Party passionately believes that a safe, healthy, and prosperous future is a legacy we can achieve for our children – if we take the necessary steps now to turn the tide of environmental, social, and economic degradation we are facing today. The Kingston Green's mission is to bring people together to achieve a sustainable society here in Kingston and in Ontario. We must apply green technologies and principles to preserve the wealth of our province. We must act together to build vibrant, productive, and diverse communities.

And we are not alone.

The Green Party is part of a world-wide movement that is growing rapidly as people recognise that we need new approaches to our problems. Greens have been elected in 29 countries around the world and are in governing coalitions in seven countries including France, Germany, Mexico, New Zealand, and Wales. In the United States, Ralph Nader has made the Greens their third largest national political party. In Canada, Greens have been publicly credited with inspiring Bill C-268, the Canada Well-Being Measurement Act. In British Columbia, Greens received up to 30 percent of the vote in some ridings during the last provincial election.

Here in Kingston the Greens are growing as well. In the last Federal election the Kingston & The Islands Greens doubled its voter support from the previous federal election. With your support we hope to again double our vote in the upcoming provincial election.
